Photoshop has three main components to its tools. The mouse can be used to select and move, cut, copy, paste, remove, and create objects. A keyboard can be used to select text (which you can also make edit in the application) and perform other functions. If you're using a trackpad or mouse, you can control Photoshop with your mouse's scroll wheel. And there's also a set of three plug-in buttons that control different Photoshop functionality. This is a change from previous versions of Photoshop, which used the previous set of four. You can disable this functionality in Photoshop's tool options. Adobe Photoshop CC is completely compatible with previous Photoshop versions. Photoshop CC gives you a large selection of options, tools, and features that work on layers, your saved files, and the document itself. It has a large list of features. Many of these functions are similar to those of older versions of Photoshop but with a few notable differences. One of the more significant differences is that Photoshop CC allows you to work with image data as a binary data stream. This creates some new ways to manipulate images. It also enables easier vector manipulation. Using Photoshop CC Photoshop CC's interface is laid out differently from earlier versions of Photoshop. Instead of dropping files and folders on top of an image, you make selections directly in the image and then apply the selection on a layer or make a selection on a separate layer. When you open a new document in Photoshop CC, it opens in the "original" viewport size. You can still edit the entire image in this viewport. When you need to view a larger sized copy, you can do so through the "detail" viewport. When you're finished, you can close down the detail viewport to return to the original viewport. You are presented with three panes on the main display of Photoshop CC. Each pane has its own options and buttons. The top pane displays the currently active image. The center pane displays the currently active document. The bottom pane displays your currently selected tools and windows. You can edit, erase, crop, or select the current document in the center. The left side of the screen is dedicated to the Windows

George F. Nugent George F. Nugent was the chief executive officer of the New York Central Railroad (NYC), from September 1, 1935 to January 30, 1941, when he resigned and was succeeded by Charles H. Southard. During his tenure at NYC, he was also acting chairman of the board. Born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, his parents were John A. and Hannah (Graber) Nugent. His father was the brother of railroad president James R. Nugent. He was educated at the University of Michigan, and joined the NYC in 1896, serving as assistant to the general superintendent for seven years. In 1905, he was named superintendent of the Altoona division, and in 1911 was promoted to that position for New York City. He was named president and general manager of the NYC in 1921, and in 1922, when James R. Nugent retired, his brother George was named chief executive. During World War I, Nugent served as a major in the Chemical Warfare Service, and was awarded the French Croix de Guerre. When US Senator Robert F. Wagner died in 1935, Nugent was chosen by the board of directors to succeed him. The highly political appointment was met with resentment by certain NYC employees, with Harry Bridges being the most prominent. Nugent's tenure as president was marked by progress in both the operating and financial performance of the railroad. In financial matters, the railroad was the most profitable in the industry in 1932, just prior to the national depression. When his successor took office in 1941, the railroad was still profitable, despite its losses in the European war. He resigned the presidency in 1941, but remained chairman of the board, which he had been since 1925. After his resignation, he was succeeded by Charles H. Southard. He died in New York City on October 12, 1947. Q: How to get the timestamp in SQL? I am trying to get timestamp from mysql database, I am able to get and write but the issue is I am getting the time only but not the date with it. Here I get the time only from the row. SELECT STR_TO_DATE(date_field,"%d-%m-%Y") FROM `new_table` Here I am trying to get the timestamp along with the date. SELECT STR_TO_DATE(date_field,"%d-%m-%Y"), STR_TO_DATE(time_field,"%H:%i:%s") FROM `new_table` The output: date_field time_field 23-10-2019 00:01:00 What I want: date_field time_field 23-10-2019 00:00:01 A: You'll need to use a UNION ALL. One way is: SELECT STR_TO_DATE(date_field, "%d-%m-%Y") as date_field, STR_TO_DATE(time_field, "%H:%i:%s") as time_field FROM (SELECT NULL as date_field, 0 as time_field, '23-10-2019' as date_field UNION ALL SELECT '23-10-2019', '23:30:59', '23-10-2019' UNION ALL SELECT '23-10-2019', '00:01:00', '23-10-2019' UNION ALL SELECT '23-10-2019', '23:30:59', '23-10-2019') dt; Note: I don't know where date_field and time_field come from. You can either show the query that generates these columns, or you can make the table definition reflect the query so that the needed columns match the query.
