I want something that's as powerful as a decent Macbook, but looks like an ultraportable. I want to be able to read all my ebooks on it. I want to be able to open a bunch of tabs in a browser or maybe even surf the web without running out of battery. My budget is $500. The screen must be at least 12", and preferably higher. A 11" screen isn't going to cut it. Most of the netbooks I've seen seem to be either oversized HD laptops, or Linux boxes masquerading as netbooks. I want something that, while not looking, sporting, or too large, has a good-sized screen and is snappy and fast to boot and load apps. Can someone please suggest something for me? ------ dstein I bought my first netbook to replace a laptop that was already stolen. I've been using a netbook since I bought it. It's been great. I'm using Ubuntu, and it runs great. I just switched from an Asus U30JC, which is a little dearer than you're asking for, but the build quality and the keyboard is much better. Also, Windows 7 is still ahead of Ubuntu at this time. But anything more than $500 will be a little unwise. As you can see, this is just part of the output I get. It is not what you see when you search the drive for "Insanityasylumvolume2dvddownloadtorrent1 Serial Key.pdf" but just an example. I would like to use WinRM but when I try to add a new credential, it asks me for this.netrc file but with the contents in the example there should not be any credentials. I'm not really sure what to look at. Any help would be greatly appreciated. Edit: When I try to connect with PowerShell, it seems to do the same thing: PS C:\> Connect-VIServer -Server allme.mycompany.com -Credential (Get-Credential) C:\Users\Edwin> Connect-VIServer -Server allme.mycompany.com -Credential (Get-Credential) Get-Credential : Unspecified Error (connect-viserver:1) At C:\GitHub\auto-util-linux\Auto\Autorun\connect.ps1:1 1 + Connect-VIServer -Server allme.mycompany.com -Credential (Get-Credential) + ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~ + CategoryInfo : NotSpecified: (Unspecified Error (connect-viserver:1... + FullyQualifiedErrorId : connect-viserver:1,connect.ps1 C:\Users\Edwin> A: I had the same issue. Unfortunately, Firefox version 63 (released March 16, 2020) doesn't yet allow the API to be used directly. Alternative paths To bypass this restriction, you can use a more supported browser and then emulate the Firefox version it uses. Currently, the only ones that support the API are the following: Chrome Safari Edge For Firefox, Chrome and Safari use the -cookie-secure flag to ensure that cookies are sent over the secure HTTPS protocol. Edge uses the CSP rules. For example, to emulate Firefox v60 in Chrome (which has been deprecated by Chrome v63), use the following in the address bar: chrome://version/ After the success message, copy the browser version (using Ctrl+c) and paste it in the field. The activity of the glomerular podocytes is of major importance for the clearance of waste products and ions from the blood to the urine. The "perfect" filtration barrier and the balance between the production of ROS and the activity of antioxidant enzymes determine the glomerular function, which in turn may be affected by continuous stimuli, such as high circulating levels of pro-oxidants. The protease/peptidase activity, which is restricted to the glomerular podocytes, has been recognised as one of the key regulators of the fenestrated capillary wall. Since the first observation that oxidant stress may affect the activity of the peptidase/peptidase-rich glomerular podocytes, the role of ROS
